THE INSTRUCTION IN WORLDVIEW

I have been privileged over the past 12 years to teach an Apologetics class to 11th and 12th graders during the Sunday school hour at my church. Apologetics is the study of how to make a reasonable defense of the faith. When we began constructing the class, our elders asked us to design a syllabus that would help equip the students for the philosophical and spiritual challenges our teens would face in college. Our key text for justifying this subject is from First Peter chapter three in which we read the command, "...be ready to give a defense to everyone who asks you a reason for the hope that is in you..."

One of the big topics we discuss is WORLDVIEW. A worldview is the set of beliefs that help individuals make sense of life and the world in which we live. When we look at the events and situations that present themselves to us, we interpret them according to our beliefs. A coherent worldview will help us answer the big questions facing mankind. Those questions can be generally organized into philosophical categories. The framework we use in the class is in the chart below. I have enjoyed teaching this class and have heard feedback from several of the young people that the material has been very helpful and beneficial in their spiritual walk.

Unfortunately, the class only meets for an hour a week. To adequately train young people in this discipline requires continuous teaching and repeated application. Our children are constantly instructed in worldview thinking from the movies and shows they watch, the advertising we pass by, the news they hear, and from the people with whom they converse. To try to overcome that influence with a few hours of teaching on Sunday is not sufficient. If we want to pass on our worldview to our children, we have to be intentional about it, we have to be diligent about it, and we need to be wise.

The answers to the "Big Questions" are ones that make up the heart of literature and history discussions. We need to be well-informed ourselves; confident in our conclusions and be willing to allow our children to ask questions knowing that the Word of God will stand on its own. Our worldview will shape our life and will shape the life of our child. Let's make sure we get it right and pass it on to our kids. The world is teaching our kids how to think. Are we doing a better job?

Categories	Big Questions
REALITY (Metaphysics)	What is real? Where did we come from?
MAN (Ontology)	Who are we? What is being?
VALUES (Ethics, Aesthetics, Axiology)	What has gone wrong with the world?
	What can we do to fix it?
	How should you live your life?
TRUTH (Epistemology)	How do you know? What is true?

I Peter 3:13-17

<sup>13</sup> And who is he who will harm you if you become followers of what is good?

<sup>14</sup> But even if you should suffer for righteousness' sake, you are blessed. "And do not be afraid of their threats, nor be troubled."

<sup>15</sup> But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts, and always be ready to give a defense to everyone who asks you a reason for the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear;

<sup>16</sup> having a good conscience, that when they defame you as evildoers, those who revile your good conduct in Christ may be ashamed.

<sup>17</sup> For it is better, if it is the will of God, to suffer for doing good than for doing evil.

PRAY

We really do believe that any mighty working of God will be preceded by humble and genuine prayer. The Scriptures remind us in James chapter four that we "have not because we ask not." Again in chapter five of that same book we read that "the fervent prayers of a righteous man avails much." Jesus specifically entreated us in many places to pray for all that we need. If you can do nothing else, remember that you can always pray and it is not a vain effort!
